

Question:

Does CDI and Schroeder propose an indefinitely prolonged moratorium even if SU does not agree to (what R regards as) an "adequate" number of stations and ~~approved~~ on-site inspections?

i.e. at least 3 years, $3\frac{1}{2}$ years...?

If not, is moratorium unifiable?

Acceptable — e.g. to most in Congress?

Is this a valid basis for NPT/Post dismissal?

Or should moratorium be limited to 6 mos. — 1 year — enough time to negot a CTB?

(Congress could decide whether to extend it, based on evaluation of progress in negot — as coercion of R, if necessary. ... or end it, if SU not forthcoming.

Basis for public promise 1954-63: fall-out.

Now: fear of nuclear war

fear of prolif

desire to stop arms race.

CDI may have misjudged: — PR value of Ag 6 stand. (in US)

— impact of SU initiative

— "Sales value" of an "uninterrupted moratorium"

(vs., perhaps, flight-test moratorium

ASAT-moratorium — which NPT defers and Congress did pass.

Is there a press-roots motive for CTB?!

Note — lack of "celebration" of end of SU testing!

What if moratorium were ended either: (1) SU tested or (2) [~~Once~~ SU proved unwilling to provide for adequate verif.

But — is "testing while talking" a way to get a Treaty?
or to show adequate "good faith" for NPT?

Yes: Even with a friendly Pres, monotonia offers only
"evidence of good faith" to SU, and to NNWSP.

It worries opponents of a test ban, in US (+ Allies)
and those very skeptical of SU, or who want to appear to be.

And SU monotonia worries the just as much,
if joined by US.

So, why monotonia now?

— NPT Review!

(Well, it's too late!)

Self. Monotonia would be better than mutual testing
(despite risk of cheating)

But new majority of Congress would not back on indef. monotonia (= absence of unif. CTB) — even under a favorable Pres!

and certainly won't oppose a hostile Pres on this!

limited-time monotonia — if US — could be pressure on SU to grant verifiable unif, and US for remaining in CTB

This is what Mondale, Hart agreed to!

On the limited monotonia could press R to negot
— "to keep SU from remaining."

Congress could do this for Quirk Triage — to stop new weapons, tell new Pres. Public could do this — if our movement was still strong enough. But, test monotonia?

Other countries can call for moratorium with "intentional inspection" (Sawley, 176; Nov 6, 1962)

Es - interpret 5-month moratorium (+ SC offer to continue)

as (1) evidence of SC "good faith" intent in CTB

(it would not continue unless a CTB:

i.e. US would be expected to treat)

~~to~~ US; and NNBVSP

2) Pressure on US to negot CTB

(not, to join indep. moratorium!)

3) esp. pressure on US from NAT Powers:

US isolated, i.e.

a) refusing to join moratorium

b) refusing to negot

c) uninf. demands

(But US can: 1) join limited-period moratorium —
long enough to negot. CTB

("5 months — or longer, if SC is negotiating in good faith.") ② Negot CTB

3) Press SC on uninf.

unless US (admits it) doesn't want uninf. CTB.

(Without moratorium, SC's own good faith desire for end of testing would be in question — it would not have responded to NPT/UN demand for action;
it would not have focused pressure on US, it would not have put US subject to the test of whether it would accept uninf. CTB, since US could claim it doubted SC's will.
